Student Experiences Comprehension Quarterlies are four volumes of motivating fiction and nonfiction selections designed to provide the intermediate age student specific comprehension strategies to become independent readers. The CQ's are organized around themes designed to be interesting and motivating to students. The cross-curricular connections serve as springboards for writing projects. Further, there are opportunities for the students to extend their learning via internet-based projects.

Reading Workshop for Fiction and Nonfiction provides students small-group instruction for below grade level, on grade level and above grade level learners. The lesson plans introduce students to new fiction and nonfiction text types that they will encounter in literature study and content area reading. Students are immersed in quality books which serve as models for writing, are afforded opportunities to activate prior knowledge and other pertinent comprehension and literacy strategies.

The Bridge to Comprehension lessons support below level readers who need extra time, teacher support, and practice in reading nonfiction texts. The Bridge to Comprehension guided reading books are written to preview, reinforce the theme, vocabulary, and comprehension strategies taught in the Comprehension Quarterlies. Further, these books provide the below-level reader with opportunities to be introduced to various text features that connect to science, social studies, and other curriculum.

Wonder Writers provide the lessons and writing activities that engage students as they learn the skills, strategies, techniques, and the craft of writing. The Writer's Handbook gives students an engaging and useable reference tool covering a variety of writing and grammar usage and mechanics.

Assessment	Rigby Literacy offers teachers a variety of assessment techniques and tools for meaningful evaluation of real reading and writing. These techniques are meaningful, multi-modal, and within authentic contexts. The goal of these assessments is to assist the student to become self-monitoring and independent. Throughout the Teacher's Guides, assessment checkpoints are highlighted to enable teachers to track student growth. A variety of these checkpoints are available in the Comprehension Quarterlies, Fiction and Nonfiction, and Bridge to Comprehension lessons, and the Teacher's Writing Resource. The Comprehension Quarterly Test, given four times a year, is designed to assess students in a more formal manner. There are student assessments provided for the fiction and nonfiction books. These are intended to assess a student's knowledge of the features of the book's genre and their understanding of the literacy skills taught in the lesson plans. Further, a variety of forms, checklists, and logs are provided to help the teachers facilitate evaluation.
Organization	Reading instruction is designed to be 90 minutes in length. A lesson could involve more than one day (90 minutes) of instruction. The time, activities and materials that are used will be age and ability appropriate. This instructional design will be delivered in three different settings. Whole group instruction will include the sequential, systematic and explicit instruction in the five essential components of reading instruction. All elements of the instructional design will be present in whole group instruction. Small group instruction will be provided to groups of children who have similar needs. The groups will be flexible in composition and will focus on practicing the critical attributes of the whole group instruction for the purposes of reinforcing, reteaching or extending the learning as appropriate for the small group. Instructional materials may be differentiated in small group instruction, but the expectation of reaching a proficient level of reading will be constant. Small group instruction also allows more accurate assessment of individual student needs to inform instruction. Individualized instruction will be provided where needed to allow for reteaching or extension of the learning as appropriate.
